Payton Sargenti is from a loving family of eight, two brothers, three sisters, and her parents. Payton grew up in Wyckoff NJ and is in 8th grade at Eisenhower Middle School. Payton loves to play lacrosse with her friends and sisters. Payton makes anyone laugh with her sense of humor and overall witty personality. Towards the end of this summer Payton started to experience pains in her stomach. One morning Payton woke up with an excruciating pain and she was rushed to the emergency room. Payton then found out that her appendix had ruptured and she needed to go through a surgery that night. There were complications in her surgery where they found that the small intestines had a tear which caused infections in her stomach. Doctors ran tests to find out what caused this tear in her small intestines. As the doctors were expressing concerns of cancer in her small intestines Payton's parents took her to Sloan Kettering Cancer Center in NYC. There she was diagnosed with lymphoma in her small intestines. Luckily, this is a curable cancer, but she will have to go through chemotherapy for six months. Payton expressed her caring personality when her only worry when she was diagnosed was how her family and friends would react. Payton's positive and determined attitude helps her get through her treatments.
